Christian Symbols Copyright

All of our patterns are registered with the US Copyright Office. As legal holders of these copyrights, we retain exclusive rights to authorize others to do the following:

- To reproduce the work in photocopies.
- To distribute the patterns to the public by sale or any other form of transfer.
- To teach or display the patterns publicly.

What this means is that to teach classes pertaining to the Christian Symbols, one must have written permission from Rufty's Chrismon Shop.

For those teaching classes to their home church congregation, we will generally approve. However, we will not approve if our patterns are to be distributed among the general public unless each pattern has been packed and sold as a kit from Rufty's.

Written permission may be obtained only after individuals have signed a release stating the terms of such an agreement. Those found to be in violation of the guidelines set forth by the US Copyright Office will be reported to the appropriate federal authorities.

Sincerely,

Bradford A Beaver, Treasurer
